
Business body language

Unless you work in a darkened room with only Morse code to communicate with the outside world, you can't escape the massive impact body language has in business. Wouldn't it be great to be a mind reader? With this simple course you can do just that. Find out who you've made a great impression on and who you have to work harder to impress, who will buy and who won't. From clients to colleagues, this is information you can't afford to be without. Women are generally more intuitive than men when it comes to reading and interpreting the signs, but don't despair chaps you can learn to reap the benefits of it too. The best part is that all the information you need to be successful is free and readily available, right before your eyes.

Learn about; Appropriate touching, territories and personal space, power gazing, body language sins, secret sales signals, smoke screens, sexual harassment or successful business flirt, and playing the body language game. Click here to find out what you will learn on our business body language training session, who it is suitable for and for outline costs.