
Alternative Christmas Party

Ideas for Christmas Parties

Do you find arranging a Christmas party to suit all the staff just a little bit of a challenge?

One of the jobs I dreaded the most, when I was Head of HR, was choosing what to do for the Christmas party. Did you know that research shows that over 50% of staff dread the Christmas party? Which is almost as high as the amount of organisers who worry about the prospects of ensuing litigation, due to H&S and sexual harassment issues.

Isn't it demoralising after all your hard work arranging a Christmas get together to look around the room to see the miserable faces of the people who would rather eat their own heads than attend, then worse, look in horror at the drunken office leech about to make an unwanted pass at one of the senior managers or an over the limit drinker climb into their car to drive home?

What would you say to the idea of a Christmas training event without any risk of litigation and, more to the point, that ALL the staff would enjoy, plus they'd get the added benefit of actually learning something that will improve their performance, boost morale and increase company profits?

The magical festive flirt

If the answer is YES, we have just the solution for you. The hilarious, fast paced and alcohol free alternative to the Christmas party with "The magical festive flirt" experience, hosted by Flirt Guru Elizabeth Clark and the Laughter Dinner Speaker John Hotowka.

A training event unlike any other, you'll be entertaining your staff with a combination of Elizabeth's hands on session in; the secret body language skills which let you read your colleagues and clients minds, increase your confidence and boost charisma, followed by humour supremo John's team building boosting techniques. Described as a pair walking visual aids and without so much as a whiff of PowerPoint, training and never been so painless or enjoyable with the added benefit of improving the bottom line. The event can be as short as 1.5 hours or as long as 3, you provide the venue and well bring all the entertainment you could want. The content is tailored to your needs and desirable learning outcomes. Email us here for a general breakdown of the event

Avoid litigation, get great entertainment, book now..

Dates are getting limited, but if we can't accommodate you in December, how about using it as a January kick off meeting to start the New Year on a high!

If you can't avoid the Christmas party, then check out Christmas part survival guide or grab a copy of our fabulous

Flirt Guru CD to help bag you your dream date!

Office Party survival guide

If you can't avoid the office party click here to see our guide that will get you through it with your career and reputation intact.